Tracklayer Certification

John Etchells is willing to run another tracklayer certification training on Saturday, Dec. 14. But he needs to know how many people are planning on coming.

The session would be held at the Lebanon Township Municipal building where we hold TED and would start at 10AM. It will take about 4 hours to complete the training.

This is an excellent opportunity to improve your track laying skills.

Please call John by Dec. 4th if you are planning to attend. If we don't have at least four people this training will be cancelled.

Certification Workshop

There were three entries this year.

Judi Edwards came up from VA by train to judge the event.

None of the entries were able to certify.

Judi has agreed to return to judge our 2003 Tracking Test.

LTC Board Changes

During the past two months three of the people who have often been present at Lenape events and who also served as officers and board members have resigned from their positions.

No we haven't made them angry.....all three are moving from NJ—Vicki Brown and Edie Braginton have headed south to North Carolina with Edie's parents. They have purchased a farm with several acres of hay fields where they will continue to track.

Joanne and Ralph MacKinnon, two of our founding members are heading in the opposite direction—to New Hampshire.

All of them will be missed by the tracking community.

Working for the club right to the end, Ralph volunteered to pick up our judge at the Trenton train station for the certification workshop. Joanne made chili for lunch for Sunday at the certification workshop. "I made chili for the first Lenape tracking event, so I thought I should make it for the last one," she said.

President Barbara Greenfield, following our constitution has asked people to fill in their unexpired terms. Alice Crans has agreed to take Edie place as Vice President which means she gets to organize TED for 2003. She will be expecting us all to help.

Teryl Lebkuether and Lisa Pattison have taken on the vacancies on the board.

We are very fortunate to have had such good members as those who are leaving. And we are especially fortunate to have three people willing to take over for them.

Lenape's Nov. 3rd Tracking Test Premium List is now available from the Test Secretary Peter Heide

Gloves

In the last issue of Common Scents Peg asked if anyone had found a glove that I thought I had lost. Well like a said I thought I lost it but I had not UTTTTTTTTT That leads me into a real LOST glove story:

One Wednesday morning a few weeks ago I laid a track for a friend of mines Golden Retriever, we waited until the track had aged 45 minutes and then took the dog out to Run it. The dog ran the track did a very nice job. At the end of the track after he had Indicated his glove the owner picked up the glove and started tossing it for him to retrieve because she forgot to carry his Frisbee with her to play with at the end. As we walked back to the vehicles the dog disappeared into a small clump of trees and came out without the glove, we looked and looked but could not find it.

A few days went by and the dog started vomiting, his owner did not think too much of it as one of her other dogs had just gotten over a spell of vomiting and she figured this guy had the same bug. After a couple of days the dog was no better and could not even keep water down. So on Wednesday 8 pm, 1 week after the glove was lost the dog was at the vets office, X-rays, exam, etc. etc etc.

You guessed it the lost glove was found, that is after extensive surgery to retrieve it. The dogs system had consumed the leather but the thinsulate liner was starting to adhere to his stomach.

The moral of this story is if your dog has a Frisbee he plays with at the end of his track as a reward, make sure you take it with you , otherwise you may be missing a glove!!!!!!!.

A Tracking Challenge

If a criminal left the scene of the crime and as he escape, he stopped to change into another person shoes would a tracking dog be able to continue following his track.?

Some of us are doing some experimenting with this challenge. We invite you to do the same and to report your findings and/or opinions.

Go out and try this scenario with your tracking dog, keep track of the age of the track, weather conditions, land conditions, etc. Let us know how you make out.

Send your Tidbits to your editor

Tidbits don't have to be something your dog has accomplished. If you have a funny story or got a great doggie oriented e-mail.... send it on.

If you have a tracking training question perhaps the answer would help someone else. Send in your question and we will publish it and our suggestions on what to do.

Tidbits...

Peg Forte and Hope Meaker's Light-foot's Deacon earned his second Open Standard agility title at the Princeton Trial. And on Sept. 29 in Westminster, MD he finished his OA title and therefore qualifies for the VCD2 (Versatile Companion Dog 2) title.

Bev Olsen' Cardigan Corgi Rain took his first major at the F.L. shows, so now he has 5 pts. Her other Cardigan Snowflake has 2 Nov.Preferred legs with a 4th and 1st place and 2 Nov. Jumper Preferred legs with 2 first places.

Joanne MacKinnon reports that her eldest daughter, Susan, is now tracking her Gold Retriever, Holly (Bred by Joanne) and doing agility as well. Who would have believed that Sue would ever become a dog trainer and handler.

2003 Tracking Test

Our test will be held on November 3rd on fields near Peter and Mollie Heide's home near Ringoes NJ. John Etchells will be needing certified tracklayers for this event—contact him at 908-236-2423 or e-mail: etchells@att.net. Our judges for the event have each sent us some information to share with our membership. Each of these experienced gentlemen have judged for us in the past. Come out and watch the test, you can learn by watching.

Mike Clemens

I do many dog sports but none compare to tracking. To work with an experience tracking dog and watching and feeling him/her actively search out that scent is the best feeling one can experience in dog work. That is what captured me back in 1979 and my love of this incredible sport has increased. As a judge I get emotional whenever I see a good working team in harmony with one another and to see them succeed is a feeling that is indescribable.

I passed my first TD in 1981 and first TDX in 1982. I became a TD Judge in 1984 and a TDX Judge in 1986 with the VST Judgeship when that started.

I founded the Hudson Valley Tracking Club in 1988 and have been their Training Director from that time to present. The Hudson Valley Tracking Club has members from all over the East Coast including members of this club.

My indoctrination to Tracking took place back in 1979 and did a little tracking and met Lydia Strawbridge that year and started tracking with her. She saw me start to track and my ineptitude back then. She grabbed the lead out of my hand and yelled "What the Hell did you do to this dog!!!" and from that point on I learned from the best. I learned what tracking is all about from this incredibly knowledgeable person. I read as much as I could about scent and got totally suckered into this sport and will try to stay in this sport as long as I am able.

Editor's Note: Mike lives in Albany, NY

Art Twiss

I have been involved with Rottweiler's since 1960 and the sport of tracking since the fall of 1968. I've helped train over 75 dogs to the TD title and about 25 to the TDX title. I have put tracking titles on 6 of my 8 Rottweilers (#8 is still in training) over the years.

I owned and trained Grunberg Brummel von der Adel Am & Can TD who holds the record for Rottweilers for the most consecutive TD's passed (13 of 13). He died one week before going to Canada for their TDX test.

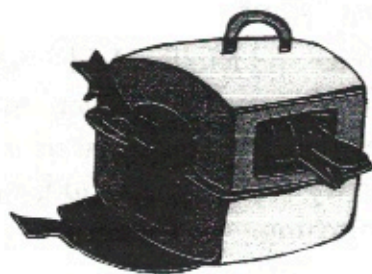

I also owned and trained Orenda von Arba who was the first Rottweiler bitch to get the TDX title the first time out in the US and Canada.

I have judged at numerous TD trials since 1981: TDX shortly thereafter and at VST trials, since it's inception, in various parts of the country.

I was a co-founder of the Tracking Club of Massachusetts (I'm currently serving as President) and served as an officer or director of TCM since its inception in 1977. Served as tracking instructor for the Concord Massachusetts Dog Training Club for over 6 years. I've written several tracking articles that have been featured in various books and magazines. Have conducted various seminars for competitors and provisional judges.

Editor's Note: Art will be driving down from his home in Reading, MA

TRAVELING WITH YOUR PET

The internet's largest pet/travel resource is located at <http://www.petswelcome.com/>

They claim to have listings for over 25,000 hotels, B&Bs, ski resorts, campgrounds, and beaches that are pet-friendly. There is a Travel Info section to learn how to take your pet anywhere. Or you can visit their Info Xchange to find answers from millions of other sophisticated travelers like yourself.

THE PORTABLE PETSWELCOME.COM is a safety net you can take with you on the road to cover all your pet-travel needs. This is a 4448 page book (19.99) Beyond the expert advice, you get listings not only for thousands of pet-friendly lodgings and campgrounds in the US and Canada, but also for pet sitters, emergency vets and kennels. We think you should use these pet professionals not as a way to leave your pet home—but instead to make it easier to take your favorite animal with you. We even throw in a few discount coupons from hotel and pet chains to make it totally worth your while. You can order it from the site.

Traveler's Choice is a new category they just added to the site to help you find the best place to stay with your pet. It's a list of lodgings that our visitors--traveling pet owners--have nominated for a Pet-Friendly Seal of Approval. A place that they stayed at and loved and recommend.

Big Dogs and (any kind of) Cats To make life easier for big dog and cat owners they also have two new databases that will allow you to search exclusively for these two categories. Now you don't have to wade through mountains of listings to find out if they'll accept your 85 lb Flat-coated Retriever or your Maine Coon Cat.

TAKING PETS EVERYWHERE! Now, they don't have to be left behind in the hotel room. Now you can take them to restaurants, museums, bookstores, law school—you name it. The site has a database of Fun and Cool Places to take your pet. It's only the beginning, of course, they have lots more. But they wanted to get it up ASAP since they've had so many requests for it.

The site has a Search by Route capabilities. Now just type in your departure point & destination and you'll get driving directions with all the pet-friendly places in-between. Then, just click on the pet-friendly icon next to the lodging you're interested in and you'll get specific pet policy information about that lodging, and will most likely be able to make a reservation. Call it genius. They call it the yellow-brick road (for a number of obvious reasons). Toto would definitely have approved..... so log on and check it out.

More Pet First Aid Courses Scheduled

The American Red Cross is holding a Pet First Aid course Teaches prompt, effective actions and are that will safeguard the life of an injured dog or cat until it can be taken to a professional veterinarian for more definite medical care and attention.

AKC Suspension

In the August 2002 AKC Gazette it was reported that a person named "Nancy Gauthier (Andover, MA) was suspended by the Tracking Club of Massachusetts for conduct at their event on May 5, 2002. Specifically Ms. Gauthier was charged with disruptive public criticism of a judge. The AKC Management Disciplinary Committee acted to suspend Ms. Gauthier from all AKC event privileges for a period of three months, effective May 20, 2002 and imposed a $300 fine."

We are bringing this to our members attention to remind them to be careful in their conduct at a tracking test or any other AKC event. Tracking judges get reimbursed for their traveling expenses and we always give them a gift. But they give up two to four days of their lives to judge these events. They always deserve to be treated with respect.

There are proper channels to follow if one feels a judge has not done their job in a fair manner according to the rules. If you have a complaint you should go to a member of the committee of the club holding the event. If you choose to do so you should have at least one witness to back up your complaint.

Please remain aware that at all AKC events if you are abusing your dog you could be subject to a public reprimand and a fine or suspension and a fine.

In each issue of the AKC Gazette people who have been reprimanded or suspended are listed. We seldom see it for something that happened at a tracking event. We don't ever want to ever see it happen at a Lenape event.

He is your friend, your partner, your defender, your dog. You are his life, his love, his leader. He will be yours, faithful and true, to the last beat of his heart. You owe it to him to be worthy of such devotion.

Tracking Bees

CNN news reports from Albuquerque, NM that researchers are working with the Defense Department to find out if honeybees can be used to detect buried land mines. Chemists at Sandia National Laboratory are conducting the research.

University of Montana scientists have discovered that bees foraging for pollen and nectar pick up dust, soil and other particles on their bodies and bring them back to the hive. Those particles can include explosives such as TNT, a primary ingredient in many land mines.

Now bees are being trained to "sniff" for explosives, eventually for drugs, maybe even your perfume or specific body scent... like a swarm of tiny bloodhounds. ...

"All land mines leak explosives into the environment," said Phil Rodacy, a land mine specialist at Sandia. "If you can get bees to go into that area they'll then collect the explosive signatures that are coming off the mines, they'll bring it back to the hive and we can detect it using various chemical sensors."

Bees bring pollen back to the hive on their back legs after a morning of foraging.

"We're testing pollen, we're testing bees, we're testing honey, anything that may have a trace of TNT," said Sandia beekeeper Gary Bender.

"And if everything works out with this project, it will be easy to deploy a box wherever you think land mines are, and then you just look at the bees."

The researchers have set up a greenhouse experiment to study how plants incorporate explosive residue into their systems. Inside the greenhouse, they also are looking at how bumblebees deal with TNT-tainted plants.

And Sandia has set up a field of land mines, minus the fuses.

"It allows us to observe the bees to see whether or not they're in the area," Rodacy said. "We can also take samples of the plants to see how much explosive is actually coming out of the mine and getting into the environment."

Ultimately, researchers hope to train the bees to actually go and find buried mines, sort of a game of "hive and go seek."

So how do you train a bee?

"We take a small feeder, place it near the bee hive and then get the bees used to going back and forth to that feeder," Rodacy said.

"Then we move that feeder farther and farther away from the hive, then cover it and the bees tend to follow that feeder. Since there's explosive crystals near the feeder, they associate that smell of the explosives with their food source."

Sandia says its preliminary research looks promising.

"The project is at a stage where you could deploy bees in an area that you thought had explosives," Rodacy said. "If there were a high enough concentration of explosives in a field, you would be able to detect it in the hive."

The scientists plan to do at least two more years of testing, including a live land mine experiment next year. If all goes well, they hope to use bees for real land mine detection within five years.

From Ananova: Bomb-sniffing honey bees are being trained in the US as a new tool to fight terror attacks.

Pentagon scientists have succeeded in making hives ignore flowers and instead swarm around traces of explosives.

Bees have extreme sensitivity to molecular trails and are able to scour every minute part of an area as they search for food.

"It appears bees are at least as sensitive or more sensitive odours than dogs," Dr Alan Rudolph, who is overseeing the operation, told the New York Times.

One plan being considered is to place a hive of trained bees near important security checkpoints and use them to guard against possible bomb attack by terrorists. The swarming detection system could also be used to find truck bombs and land mines.

Scientists used sugar-water rewards to condition bee colonies to hunt for DNT, a residue of TNT, in 99% of cases.

After one bee is trained to follow a different scent, it transfers the knowledge to others and within hours the entire hive, and often other nearby hives, have switched to the new smell.

A special radio transmitter the size of a grain of salt, due to be tested in the next few weeks, could allow individual bees to be tracked as they follow parts of bomb ingredients to their source.

Bees could also be used for sniffing out illegal drugs, which are easier to trace than explosives, the scientists said.

Pentagon officials told the paper that the idea of bomb-sniffing factors has a "giggle factor" that makes it hard to sell. Bees also have limitations, and do not work at night, in storms or in cold weather.

Thanks goes to John Etchells for submitting the first part of this article. An internet search using "Bees sniff explosives" turns up 100's more.

The Lenape Tracking Club of Central New Jersey was founded in June 1975, for the purpose of assisting people in the training of their dogs in tracking, to encourage sportsmanlike competition in tracking tests and to sponsor educational programs of interest to tracking enthusiasts.

Tracking demonstrates a dogs' ability to recognize and follow human scent, a skill that is useful in the service of mankind.
